The Franciscan Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary (FIHM) was founded on October 16, 1844, in Pondicherry, India, by Rev. Fr. Louis Savinien Dupuis, MEP. The congregation is dedicated to the sanctification of sisters and women, following the spirituality of St. Francis of Assisi. Their main ministry is educating women, with other key areas including evangelization, health care, social service, and pastoral care. The FIHM has four provinces: St. Lourdes in Pondy-Cuddalore, St. Joseph's in Trichy, Infant Jesus in Madurai, and Assisi in Andhra Pradesh. The sole region is the Dupuis Region, located in East Africa. Another congregation of Franciscan Missionary Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary was founded by Mother Catherine of St. Rose in Egypt, with a presence in the Holy Land, including Jerusalem, Bethlehem, Cana, Jericho, Haifa, Nazareth, Tabgha, and the Mount of Beatitudes. This congregation's charisma focuses on bringing peace, equality, and freedom to all through their work in schools, hospitals, and community service.
